

Is Your Military/Family Member ID Ready to Expire?

By Rudolph A. Wartella, IV

Is your Military/Family Member ID ready to expire? Look at your ID card. What is the expiration date? If your ID card is going to expire soon, or expire when your military spouse or civilian sponsor are deployed, on temporary duty, or on leave, you should go to Military Personnel Division (MPD) in Building 216 to get a new ID card. The hours at MPD are 0800-1200 / 1300-1430. If your sponsor reenlisted, extended, or received a promotion, you probably need a new ID card.

If your ID card has expired and your sponsor is not on the island, you should call or visit MPD and they can issue you a temporary ID card (good for only 90 days). MPD can also give you an Application for Uniformed Services Identification Card –DEERS Enrollment (DD Form 1172) to send to your military spouse or civilian sponsor to sign. DON'T WAIT! Don't get stopped at the gate with an expired ID card (or expired: registration, Japanese Compulsory Insurance, Property Damage Insurance, Road Tax, or driver's license)! The Joint ID Card Regulation, AR 600-8-14, was revised in June of 2009.

Expiration Checklist

- ☐ When does your ID card expire?
- ☐ When does your vehicle registration expire?
- ☐ When does your Japanese Compulsory Insurance (JCI) expire?
- ☐ When does your Property Damage Insurance expire?
- ☐ When does your Driver's license expire?
- ☐ When does your road tax expire?
- ☐ When does your power of attorney expire?

November 2009.